The luxury phone debuted on May 2nd and since then, well over 130 have been sold. Goldgenie (<http://www.goldgenie.com>) has set the benchmark again being the first company to release the Gold Q10, and it comes SIM Free and enabled for use on any network in the world. Indeed, the phone is proving very popular with Russian and Middle-Eastern blue chip companies who are selecting the handset as a high-end corporate gift.

Beautifully made and competitively priced, the Gold Blackberry Q10 (<http://www.goldgenie.com/gold-blackberry-q10.php>) looks set to become Goldgenie's fastest-selling phone. Unique in its elegant design, the Q10 boasts a 24ct gold-plated bezel exterior and a 24ct gold integrated panel beneath the key pad.

Super-thin compared to the 9900 Bold that came before it, the Q10 is BlackBerry's lightest ever handset. Its sculpted surfaces can be uniquely customised according to individual client tastes. Considered to be the easiest to use of all BlackBerry's phones, the Gold Q10 boasts a 3.14 screen and a special BlackBerry QWERTY keyboard. With the new advanced BB10 operating system that includes 16GB of RAM, the Gold Q10 from Goldgenie is a gadget and phone lover's dream. Competitive pricing, state of the art features and innovative design, will help to make the Q10 rank as Goldgenie's swiftest-selling phone thus far, if sales trends continue. Goldgenie CEO Laban Roomes said: "By far our fastest-selling customised Gold smartphone to date, the BlackBerry Q10 is creating a big buzz and we are certainly glad to see Research In Motion gaining back lost ground with their latest releases including the Porsche Design which has also been a huge success for my company".

Clients can either purchase the Gold BlackBerry Q10 directly from Goldgenie at <http://www.goldgenie.com/gold-blackberry-q10.php> or find it at selected high street stores.
