Global foreign exchange and prepaid currency card provider, ICE (International Currency Exchange – iceplc.com) has boosted its airport presence with three major new contracts for Washington DC, Belfast and Luton airports. ICE takes over foreign currency exchange services and selected business services from previous operator Change Group, at Luton and Belfast and Travelex at Washington.

Having been awarded a highly coveted 10-year deal with London Luton Airport Operations Limited, ICE will now exclusively operate six branches and 10 ATMs at the UK's 5th largest passenger airport ensuring swift and convenient access to FX services for millions of people travelling through Luton every year. Over 9.6 million passengers used the airport in 2012.

ICE also has similar 10-year contract with Belfast International Airport Limited and will operate two branches and five ATMs. Belfast Airport served 4.3 million passengers last year.

ICE has also won a substantial seven-year contract with the Metropolitan Washington Airport Authority at Ronald Reagan and Washington Dulles International airports.

The Ronald Reagan International Airport agreement includes one 600sq ft location within the main terminal while the Dulles contract puts ICE desks in all key passenger areas both at departures and arrivals. ICE will have two pre-security locations, one location in the International Arrivals area, one location in Concourse A, two locations in Concourse C, and one mobile location in Concourse D.

"These airport locations are significant additions to our network and confirm ICE's position as a global leader in delivering convenient and transparent foreign exchange services," explains Paul Glossop, Managing Director EMEA, of ICE. "Business and leisure travellers to these airports will now benefit from competitive rates and easy access to foreign exchange services, including US Dollars, Euros and Sterling, at a range of new ICE branches and ATMs. ICE continues to help passengers enjoy a stress-free journey at airports and locations around the world, complementing our online services."
