Online casino and gambling experts, Jackpot247, have commented on the potential for legalised online gambling in Massachusetts, Oregon and California.

Two separate bills have been introduced

(<http://www.onlinecasinoarchives.com/law/2014/03/22/will-there-be-legalized-online-betting-in-massachusetts-oregon-california>) in California, USA in an effort to push legalisation of online gambling forwards in the state. These bills are likely to be passed, allowing land based Native American casinos to expand their online gambling offerings to California residents. If this happens, revenue from the industry will be boosted and additional states such as Oregon and Massachusetts are more likely to follow suit in time.

This would reportedly allow states across the US a chance to partner up for gaming ventures, but only three states – New Jersey, Delaware and Nevada – currently have regulated online gambling (<http://www.jackpot247.com/>) for residents within state borders. More states, however, are starting to join them in this, with California and Massachusetts long rumoured to be the next territories to introduce legalised online gambling sites.

The online gambling experts at Jackpot247 have responded to this news, speaking about the many benefits of legalised online gambling. A spokesperson for the company said:

“Legalising online gambling in the US has had to fight a lot of resistance, but a lot of that resistance ignores all of the wonderful benefits that regulated gambling can have for individual states and the country as a whole. Not only do licensed online casinos keep the player safer and more secure while participating, but they also generate tax revenue that can then be pumped back into funding for lots of worthy projects. As an online gambling platform based in the UK, we support this regulation, and are excited about the expanding world of online gambling across the US.”
