Festival season is here again and for hundreds of thousands of music fans it's time to get ready for a great British summer experience.

Tent and wellies might be the basics, but just a few extras will make a crowded weekend in a muddy field a whole lot more civilised.

These are all seriously useful and eco-friendly too.

Nigel's Eco Store (<http://www.nigelsecostore.com/>) top festival picks are:

1. Festival Survival Kit (http://www.nigelsecostore.com/acatalog/Solar_Shower.html)
Essentials for a more civilised festival experience

Four key things put together into a great Festival Survival Kit: a wind-up torch to find your tent at night, an off-grid phone charger, a poncho for when it rains, and a toothbrush that needs no toothpaste!

The kit contains:

a wind up head torch (that can also be used as a bicycle light)

a lightweight solar phone charger,

a rain poncho made of compostable potato bio-plastic an ionic toothbrush that'll clean your teeth without toothpaste.

Price: £42.92

2. Freeloader Pro Solar Charger (http://www.nigelsecostore.com/acatalog/FreeLoader_Pro.html)
A powerful solar charger for phones and cameras

Freeloader Pro will charge virtually all portable electrical devices including higher voltage, power-hungry DVD players, camcorders, digital cameras, SLRs and video cameras.

Fully charged, Freeloader Pro can deliver enough power to give a typical mobile phone 70 hours of standby time, make 5,000 page turns on an eBook or a 100% full charge to a digital camera battery.

All that power, and at 150 x 63 x 20mm and weighing just 174g, eminently portable.

Price: £69.95

3. Solar Shower (http://www.nigelsecostore.com/acatalog/Solar_Shower.html)
Skip the queues and get less muddy.

Fill and leave this lightweight, portable solar shower in the sun during the day and come back to a warm wash.

Fitted with a sprinkler head, just hang it up to use.

Price: £9.95
