

CCTV Hunt after Gang Attack on Car Wash Worker in Prescott, Reports AlertSystems

Submitted by: AlertSystems

Friday, 16 January 2015

Absolute Digital Media

Leading providers of commercial CCTV, AlertSystems, have reported on the recent car wash assault in Prescott. Officers were called to two incidents at the Five Star Car Wash in Liverpool after a customer became aggressive towards staff.

Police are currently utilising the business CCTV from the car wash where a worker was attacked. The management at The Five Star Car Wash claimed that a man complained after his Range Rover Sport was cleaned. The individual became abusive and headbutted a member of staff, which was captured on CCTV cameras at around 2pm on December 23.

Police arrived at the scene and took the registration of the black car and a white Peugeot van that has also been put in to be cleaned. However, management said that not long after the officers left the site, the individual returned with three other men. The captured CCTV footage shows two gang members assaulting the worker as he tries to hide and escape.

Police describe the attack as 'unprovoked' and are now analysing the footage of both incidents in order to ascertain exactly how the fights started and what crimes were committed. The car wash owner claimed the argument started after the customer demanded his boot be cleaned, even though the boot was full of belongings. Despite being repeatedly punched in the face, the worker was fortunately unharmed.

As experts in business security, AlertSystems take a keen interest in relevant industry news. A spokesperson for the company made the following statement. "Protecting your business is not simply about securing your premises. Your employees are an integral part of your business and it is the duty of the business owner to protect their staff.

"The events that occurred at The Five Star Car Wash are certainly unfortunate. However, the implementation of commercial CCTV systems mean that both business and law enforcement can work together to bring these criminals to justice."

AlertSystems (<http://www.alertsystems.co.uk/>) manage and maintain thousands of commercial security installations throughout the UK and are specialists in providing business security solutions. Offering professional service and a complete range of security services such as monitored alarm systems, Automatic Number Plate Recognition and Avigilon CCTV security systems, AlertSystems provides effective and reliable solutions to security problems.