London, UK – 8 June 2016: Zenium has today confirmed it will be entering the UK data center market with the strategic acquisition of a data center facility in Slough, West London.

Branded London One, this will be the first UK facility to be added to the Zenium portfolio. The data center will provide a total of 4300 sq m of raised floor space with incoming diverse power of 15MVA. Located in one of the UK's premier data center locations, this new facility will be operational from January 2017. London One will also offer access to premium fibre back bones from all of the leading multinational telecommunication carriers.

"We are delighted to have seized this opportunity and acquired this site," said Franek Sodzawiczny, Founder and CEO at Zenium. "Zenium will soon be able to offer a quality data center solution in the UK that fulfils rising demands driven by cloud providers that only consider the most efficient data centers in the world. The decision to build a brand profile in the UK comes with encouragement from existing customers and those we have served in the past - we are excited to be here."

London One will be designed and constructed to Zenium's exacting standards of engineering and will provide a Tier III+ plus level of resilience.
