Evolve Media Group, the UK's marketing leading emigration company for Australia, Canada and New Zealand today announces record ticket sales ahead of its upcoming events in London and Birmingham.

Down Under Live (<http://www.downunderlive.co.uk>), the UK's only event for people looking to emigrate to Australia and New Zealand, and Canada Live (<http://www.canadalive.co.uk>), dedicated to a new life in Canada, have both seen increases of more than 70% in registrations. This follows a 40% increase in search activity for emigration terms following the EU referendum and reflects a growing uncertainty about the UK's immediate future post Brexit.

All three countries provide a compelling draw for UK citizens looking for a better quality of life, improved employment opportunities and in Australia's case, 300 days of sunshine a year. The start of the year is traditionally the peak for interest in emigration, but 2016 will buck the trend as more than 8,000 people are expected to pack Sandown Park in London on the 15th & 16th October and the National Motorcycle Museum in Solihull on the 29th & 30th October. This represents an increase of more than 50% on the last shows held in February.

Visitors will be able to get a free visa assessment for all three countries, talk to experts in every field of migration, including visas, shipping, banking, study, pensions, currency exchange and recruitment, visit the dedicated expo hall, as well as hearing a full day of seminar talks. The immigration department for New Zealand will also be at both shows, looking to recruit skilled migrants from the UK.

John Weir, event director for Evolve Media Group, comments "The extraordinary growth in interest in emigration and our shows is unprecedented. The current economic uncertainty is driving more and more people to consider a new life overseas, and our shows will provide them with an informative and authoritative start on their emigration journey."
