Leading UK legal systems innovator Zylpha (www.zylpha.com) has signed a strategic partnership with SOS (Solicitors Own Software) Ltd. (www.soslegal.co.uk), the widely acclaimed developers of legal software for law firms and alternative business structures. Under the terms of the partnership, SOS will promote Zylpha's bundling (<http://www.zylpha.com/electronic-document-bundling/>) along with its Adobe Sign integration. Combined, the systems represent an ideal solution for law firms seeking to innovate and drive efficiency across their organisation.

SOS software has won widespread acclaim for its ability to streamline the operations and processes of both law firms and Alternative Businesses Structures. SOS Connect delivers modern progressive best-practice technology, designed to meet the most demanding needs of the sector; whilst the SME targeted Virtual Practices solution delivers the same benefits as fully hosted solutions.

Integrated into SOS software, Zylpha's electronic document bundling software allows practices to assemble and deliver secure legal documents, court bundles, deal bibles and contracts at a fraction of the cost and effort of manual processes. Through cross-collaboration, the two companies will deliver a single product experience for users, who will benefit from a reduced time and cost investment along with significant storage stationery and courier savings.

Says Elaine Galvin, Commercial Director of SOS Ltd., "Zylpha delivers the ability to digitally transform the legal documentation processes of both practices and ABS. We are delighted to have joined forces with them through this partnership and look forward to extending the benefits of their software to our highly innovative customer base."

For his part Tim Long CEO of Zylpha welcomed Galvin's comments adding, "SOS recognises, that in the new legal landscape, law firms need to look at ways of competing and working differently. Users also now need their systems to dramatically enhance their client's experience.

"A key part of this digital transformation, is the constant re-evaluation of IT systems. For many law firms this represents a real challenge and all too often their existing processes, in areas such as document management, are holding them back. By combining SOS technology with Zylpha, users can create secure bundles in a fraction of the time it takes to prepare them manually. This saves considerably on the staffing, storage and stationery costs and boosts both customer experience and green credentials. We look forward to working closely with SOS and in driving the integration benefits available from our two systems."
