

KENT AUTISTIC WOMAN RECOGNISED BY PRIME MINISTER FOR COMMITMENT TO AUTISM

Submitted by: NAKMAS National Governing Body

Friday, 1 September 2017

Kent based Dr Sandra Beale-Ellis, has been chosen by Prime Minister Theresa May to receive the 765th Points of Light award for her campaigning to get autistic children involved in sports and recreation activities.

May said, 'through your campaigning you have encouraged thousands of children with autism to get involved in sports and recreation activities outside of the classroom. You have used your own experiences to promote greater inclusion for the next generation, and you should be proud of what you have achieved. The Points of Light award is a small thank you on behalf of the whole country, in recognition of your exceptional service.'

Beale-Ellis, clinically diagnosed with Asperger's Syndrome, during her study for a Doctorate in Education (Autism) at Sheffield Hallam University, just a few years ago; then researching the learning experiences of young autistic individuals in sports and recreation activities. This followed many years of teaching karate and dance, specialising in students with medical, neurological, emotional and social differences; a passion which was the result of childhood cancer and arthritis.

Since her doctorate she has been busy with her website and blog 'the autistic voice' and has written two books. Autism and Martial Arts: A Guide for Children, Parents and Teachers was published two years ago and remains popular. Her second, Sensing the City: An Autistic Perspective was published just a week ago. She uses her autistic voice to report on sensory experiences within many cities worldwide, highlighting the incredible, and giving advice to manage the more challenging aspects for an autistic individual.

Dr Luke Beardon, Senior Autism Lecturer at the Sheffield Hallam University Autism Centre, said: 'the words associated with this award are 'innovative, outstanding, and inspirational'. These three words sum up Sandra's work and person admirably. I count myself lucky in the extreme to know Sandra, and continue to be inspired by the example she sets supporting autistic learners. Her myriad qualities make her an absolute deserved winner of the award which will count towards her already impressive achievements'.

Beale-Ellis was, for once, speechless when she received the phone call from the PM's Office. 'I am astonished and delighted to receive this award and for the Prime Minister to recognise my passion and commitment for helping other autistic individuals. This should raise yet more awareness so that autists do not feel isolated and misunderstood'.

Her local MP, Sir Roger Gale, said of the news: 'I am absolutely delighted to hear that Sandra is to be a recipient of the Prime Minister's prestigious Points of Light Awards; only those working with autism regularly can truly understand the level of dedication and determination required and Sandra richly deserves this recognition of her voluntary commitment.'

Visit www.theautisticvoice.co.uk The site has links to her social media platforms, her blog and details about her work and publications.

Ends

Notes to Editors:

Dr Sandra Beale-Ellis

PO Box 262

Herne Bay

Kent

CT6 9AW

Tel: 01227 376181 / 370055

07966 403271

Email: sandra@theautisticvoice.co.uk

Points of Light

<https://www.pointsoflight.gov.uk/autism-campaigner/>

Dr Luke Beardon, Director of Studies, Autism Centre, Sheffield Hallam University

Tel: 0114 225 4548

Email: l.beardon@shu.ac.uk

Sheffield Hallam University

Doctorate in Education Programme

2010-2014

Also www.kentkarateschools.co.uk for further details of classes.

National Autistic Society

<http://www.autism.org.uk/professionals/training-consultancy/university/postgrad-certificate.aspx>

Sandra's Books:

<http://nakmas.org.uk/books>