Friday, 03 November 2017

Hit London taco joint Killer Tomato has just opened a second site on Portobello Road in Notting Hill and launches its All You Can Eat Tacos / Bottomless Brunch promotion on Saturday lunchtimes. For £32, hit up all their house tacos plus cheeseburger tacos and get bottomless fizz/wine/Bloody Marias.

"A little gem. I love it all" Metro ****

"Tasty, moreish, brilliant. Kills it" Time Out ****

"Excellent burritos and cheeseburger tacos that made me very happy indeed" Mail On Sunday

"Top 10 tacos in London" Time Out

"Probably the best Mexican food to be found in London" Andy Hayler, restaurant critic

"The cheeseburger taco is my new favourite bastard food" Joe Warwick, restaurant critic

The new restaurant has the same menu as the Shepherd's Bush branch, including their famous cheeseburger tacos and pork belly and crackling burritos. Cocktails include a Dark and Stormy, Tommy's Margaritas and Mescal Margaritas.

The location was formerly known as The Mountain Grill, immortalised by Hawkwind's 1974 album The Hall of the Mountain Grill. Hawkwind used to eat there all the time, as did Marc Bolan and David Bowie. A homage to the artwork for The Hall of the Mountain Grill can be found in the mural at the new restaurant.

For the All You Can Eat there's a two hour time limit and you need to arrive before 4pm. Parties of six or more should book via info@killertomato.co.uk
