

The Queen is named the most powerful person in London as 2018's LondonPower100 list is released

Submitted by: London Power 100

Thursday, 1 March 2018

---

2018's London Power 100 list has been released naming Queen Elizabeth II as the most powerful person in London, but who else made the much anticipated list?

Retail tycoon Sir Phillip Green, rapper Stormzy, athlete Sir Mo Farah, Mayor of London Sadiq Khan and former Prime Minister Tony Blair are amongst the named on the list.

The LondonPower100 list aims to celebrate the 100 most influential and powerful figures in London, organised by the founders of EssexPower100 this year's list has seen heavyweights from different disciplines populate the list.

The list also includes media mogul Rupert Murdoch, former England captain David Beckham, London Live owner Evgeny Lebedev, BBC's Director General Tony Hall, Chelsea FC owner Roman Abramovich, Adele, former Mayor of London Boris Johnson, model Naomi Campbell, Prince Harry, former minister George Osborne, billionaire Lakshmi Mittal, model Kate Moss and former one direction star Zayn Malik who are named amongst the twenty most powerful people in London.

The list is governed by judges led by city lawyer Nicholas Taylor, Taylor commented "The judging team had a particularly challenging role as suggested inductees on the list included politicians, members of the Royal family, celebrities and billionaires – the process of weighing out who holds greater influence over the other was never going to be an easy one, I was pleased by the list presented to me for consideration and I am furthermore pleased to present to you the 2018 London Power 100 list."

View the full London Power 100 list here: <https://londonpower100.co.uk/2018-london-power-100-list/>

Further information –

Dan Hansen //
London Power 100 //
07722444991 //
info@mmbf.co.uk