

MasterChef Finalist's Face Oil Recipe Endorsed by Good Housekeeping Institute

Submitted by: Amanda Strutton

Friday, 13 April 2018

---

MasterChef Finalist Angela Langford (<http://www.angelalangford.com>) was celebrating this week after her natural facial oil recipe, Bloom & Glow was awarded first place in the latest Good Housekeeping Institute (GHI) blind trials – and with it GHI's coveted Approved Endorsement.

Hand-made in Somerset England by Angela herself, Bloom & Glow (<http://www.angelalangford.com/bloomandglow>) is a cruelty-free nourishing facial oil recipe packed with super food ingredients including chia seed and sea buckthorn.

The GHI Approved Endorsement is an unbiased, independent marque that is only given to products that pass the Good Housekeeping Quality Assessment tests. With their expert team of lab technicians testing hydration and their army of testers looking at design, ease of use, performance, and satisfaction, the GHI gave Bloom & Glow a score of 91/100 (<https://www.goodhousekeeping.co.uk/institute/product-reviews/nourishing-facial-oils/reviews>) – coming top out of 25 other well-known luxury and high street brands - including the likes of Murad, Caudalie, ESPA, Elemis and REN.

The GHI blind tests resulted in brilliant feedback for Bloom & Glow, scoring extremely well across the board, especially for its scent, how easily it was absorbed and how silky it left skin feeling.

Angela, founder of her natural skincare brand Angela Langford Skincare says... "I am absolutely delighted that after such rigorous blind testing, my nourishing facial oil recipe Bloom & Glow has not only been endorsed by the Good Housekeeping Institute, but came first among some of the best facial oils on the market."

"The GHI Approved endorsement will give my customers further confidence in the product, whilst making us stand out in a very crowded market".

"I have built my business largely through word of mouth and am proud to have a loyal fan base of discerning skincare customers. With the GHI Approved endorsement, I am confident that my brand will become more accessible to a wider audience who have yet to discover my superfood skincare recipes."

Suitable for all skin types, Bloom & Glow is a rose-gold coloured nourishing facial oil that blends together natural Vitamin E, organic Rosehip, Evening Primrose, Chia Seed, Sea Buckthorn and Rose Geranium. The result - an oil that can help rebalance skin that is out of kilter, calm and sooth red and inflamed skin and leave skin feeling soft, smooth and looking radiant.

ENDS

About Angela Langford

2014 MasterChef Finalist Angela Langford has a love and talent for cooking that extends far beyond the kitchen, to her home lab in Somerset, England. Angela takes the very best that nature's larder has to offer, to create award-winning skincare recipes, hand-made by Angela herself in small batches.

Angela Langford Skincare – your recipe for great skin.

Angela Langford Skincare is stocked at angelalangford.com (<http://www.angelalangford.com>)

For press enquiries email Amanda Strutton at info@angelalangford.com or call 01460 929596.