Trade Skills 4U, the UK's premier electrical training company is excited to announce that a number of Leeds and Warrington Wolves rugby legends are to make a special appearance at the opening of a brand new training facility in Leeds on the 9 May 2018.

Trade Skills 4U has been sponsoring Chris Hill from the Warrington Wolves since 2015 and for a bit of fun a number of players have been invited to compete against each other in a giant Buzz-wire game challenge to see who can get the furthest in the quickest time. I'm sure the players will take this very seriously and will want to prove who has the steadiest hands!

Established since 2005, the company has been training electricians from across the country for over 13 years, firstly in Gatwick and more recently Warrington.

They are now extremely pleased to be opening a new state-of-the-art centre in Yorkshire just east of Leeds, situated just off the M1 and A1. This means customers based in, Leeds, Sheffield, Hull, Scunthorpe, Harrogate and the surrounding areas can easily access the centre.

The centre will officially open with an introduction from CEO Carl Bennett, followed by a talk from Leeds Councillor Mohammed Rafique, Executive Member for Employment, Enterprise and Opportunity, who will speak about skills in the region. The day will also include tours of the centre, free burgers and refreshments together with free interactive practical and science sessions, an 18th Edition preview seminar and a presentation on electrical vehicle charging. Carl Bennett CEO of Trade Skills 4U said: "We are extremely excited to be opening this new centre. A lot of research was conducted in the area to ensure that this is the perfect location to run our courses from. We look forward to meeting those who are interested in entering the electrical trade or experienced electricians to join us for the opening and to see first-hand what we have on offer."

Special Offer

To celebrate the opening of the new centre the first 100 bookings will receive up to £250 off. Customers can book onto a range of courses which include City & Guilds Diploma's, Domestic Installer Packages, Inspection and Testing plus many more.
