Altran UK has announced that it has been awarded the Investors in People mark of excellence, following a thorough consultation process with employees this year.

The coveted Investors in People accreditation is awarded to motivated and forward-thinking organisations that are committed to engaging employees. Upheld as the international standard for people management, the accreditation defines what it takes to lead, support and manage people effectively to achieve sustainable results. Underpinning the standard is the Investors in People framework, reflecting the latest workplace trends, essential skills and effective structures required to outperform in any industry. Investors in People enables organisations to benchmark against the best in the business on an international scale.

Paul Devoy, Head of Investors in People, said: "We'd like to congratulate Altran UK, Investors in People accreditation is the sign of a great employer, an outperforming place to work and a clear commitment to success. Altran UK should be extremely proud of their achievement."

Angela Cooper, Director of Human Resources at Altran UK, commented on the news: "We're delighted that our employees feel they are benefitting from our significant effort to support their professional development and nurture their skills. We look forward to working with our Investors in People contacts to further this good work, leveraging their experience to make Altran the best possible place to work for talented engineers in the UK."
