HFX CEO Nick Whiteley has been listed in the Global CEO Excellence Awards of CEO Monthly magazine(i). Awarded Best Workforce Management Business Leader and the Excellence Award for Absence Management Solutions (UK), both awards form part of CEO Monthly's programme to recognise the CEOs responsible for driving change while successfully managing the day-to-day operations within an organisation.

Whiteley was chosen along with other leading CEOs for his outstanding achievements. It recognises his leadership and innovation in the development of our next generation product and underlines HFX's position as a leading provider of workforce management solutions in the UK.

Recently he led HFX's development strategy to design solutions that address the need for today's organisations to capture and analyse data to provide insights for employee efficiencies. "We have focussed on developing powerful solutions that are simple to use and integrate, which is no easy task, but reaps benefits for our customers.

"Our Time and Attendance solution, now combined with Access Control and 3D Rostering, forms our next generation system. It enables organisations to gain an important multi-dimension view of staff activity, to identify where costs are going and optimise plans and workforce accordingly," said Whiteley.

Nicola Smart, COO at HFX commented; "We are delighted that Nick has been nominated for this award. He has been instrumental in leading the team at HFX with his vision and drive in developing solutions for a new world of work. We are already seeing rapid uptake of our solutions with many new customers facing these workforce challenges. Our new solutions build on our expertise of helping organisations manage working hours transparently and fairly, improving productivity and wellbeing."
