Christmas is a time for family. Spending quality time with loved ones is something we all wish we had more time for and we can often be guilty of neglecting traditions due to our fast-paced way of living and digital age. But this winter, why not move away from technology and invest in some wholesome and cheering entertainment to keep the whole family amused for hours?

With a growing school of thought thinking it best to move away from time spent in front of screens, classic products such as boardgames and puzzles can help you relax as a family and provide endless hours of entertainment. Addiction to gaming and the excessive use of smart phones, televisions and the web is now recognised by the World Health Organisation as a disorder, which can lead to stress and significant impairment in day-to-day functioning*.

With this in mind, never before has it been so significant for families to understand the importance of time spent away from screens and what better time to encourage both young and old alike to ditch their technology, than at Christmas? So rather than sitting down to watch a film together, sit down and interact over a game together. Compete with your cousins, side with your sister or ally with your auntie. Afterall, what better way to bond than over a boardgame?

This festive season keep spirits high by focusing on fun that the whole family can enjoy together. Ryman Stationery (<https://www.ryman.co.uk/>) understand the importance of time spent with loved ones and have a huge range of games and puzzles to suit you and your nearest and dearest. So, whether you opt for a mind-boggling war of wits or favour a fun and light-hearted game of cards, there's something to suit everyone this Christmas.
