London, 21st November 2018. Professional Services Technology Group (<http://www.pstg.co.uk>) (PSTG Ltd) has achieved certification to the internationally recognised ISO 27001 standard signifying that its information security practices meet the highest international standards. This independent assessment was conducted by the British Assessment Bureau, a leading Certification Body who assessed PSTG's commitment to the ongoing and systematic approach to managing both company and customer data.

ISO 27001, the internationally recognised Information Security Management Standard ensures that a company's data management, user details and third-party information is secure, and that best practices are established for information security. With ISO 27001 in place, PSTG are able to minimise risks to potential data security breaches and reduce errors and costs, while demonstrating credibility and trust.

"By securing ISO 27001 for information security, we're proud to be recognised that we take all aspects of IT and data security seriously, and we are able to demonstrate this to our customers, employees and suppliers. By going through such a comprehensive process to achieve operational excellence we now have the processes and systems in place that keep critical data safe, and minimise the risk of potential security breaches", said Simon Rosemeyer, Operations Director at PSTG.
