- Paul Moorby presented with OBE for promoting UK technology overseas
- Presented today at Windsor Castle

Swindon, Wiltshire, 22nd March 2019: Paul Moorby, founder and CEO of Chipside (<https://www.chipside.com>), today received an OBE in a ceremony held at Windsor Castle.

Paul received the OBE for services to promoting the UK technology sector abroad. The award was announced as part of the New Year Honours list 2019.

Paul is the founder and CEO of Swindon-based Chipside. The company's core software and services can be deployed to provide a whole host of ticketing and permitting services digitally, reducing both time and cost and delivering a more effective service to end users.

Chipside's services are used by more than three million people in the UK and the company operates the MiPermit (<https://www.mipermit.com/>) brand, which has helped almost two million people benefit from cashless parking. The company works with more than half of all UK councils to make parking and permitting easier.

A passionate advocate of UK innovation, Paul has promoted Chipside and UK capabilities in Europe, the Americas and Asia. He is travelling to Taiwan tomorrow as part of a Department of International Trade (DIT) delegation promoting British business at the Smart City Expo in Taipei.

"I feel truly honoured to have received this recognition," comments Paul. "I believe it recognises the entire team of 50 at Chipside and demonstrates that a passionate and innovative regional company can have a positive impact to deliver a more effective solution to daily frustrations such as parking and permitting."

Chipside is based close to Swindon in Wiltshire and the company is a significant local employer. It also contributes to the local community through sponsorship and support for good causes. This year, MiPermit is a gold sponsor of the 2019 Salisbury Armed Forces Day (<http://www.salisburycitycouncil.gov.uk/a/armed-forces-day>).

Notes to editors:

Chipside provides digital ticketing and permitting services for local and national governments. Its services are used by more than 3 million people in the UK and beyond. The business currently delivers digital tickets and permits to around half of the UK's local authorities, predominantly to enable digital and app-based parking payment and permit services. With 50 employees and operations in the UK and Asia, Chipside enables more simple, effective and efficient delivery of public services.
