

Bust out of lockdown with online Escape Rooms

Submitted by: LiveVideoEscapeRooms.com

Friday, 3 April 2020

LiveVideoEscapeRooms.com launches to showcase world's online Escape Rooms

Fed up of virtual happy hour? Switch it up and play an Escape Room from the comfort of your own home played via Zoom video.

Escape Room software company Buzzshot has produced an online hub, called Live Video Escape Rooms, to showcase a whole host of live video experiences for people to enjoy from home.

From uncovering the secrets of a long-lost relative to journeying to the depths of the Pacific ocean, Live Video Escape Rooms allows users to guide a host - via live video - to explore, solve puzzles and uncover mysteries. And there's no need for friends to miss out - players can join from multiple homes via video links.

"With the COVID-19 crisis the whole industry has been suffering along with many of my customers," said Buzzshot founder Thomas Parslow. "This is my way of doing something positive to help a new trend I think could provide support for many struggling Escape Room companies and much needed entertainment - plus a cure for social isolation for many bored Escape Room fans."

Live Video Escape Rooms features rooms from all over the world. Cost and number of players varies per game. To access the directory, visit LiveVideoEscapeRooms.com/

ENDS

Notes to editors:

Buzzshot is an Escape Room software company that provides software for check-in, team photos and automatic follow-ups.

If you would more information/an interview with Thomas Parslow or an interview with one of the Escape Room creators, contact Thomas on: tom@buzzshot.co or call 0044 7951261227