Astreea's Pedal-Operated Design Coupled with Seamless Style Makes It the Go-To Sanitiser Dispenser

As pandemic restrictions are being eased throughout the UK, businesses are finding it difficult to locate and purchase much needed hand sanitiser dispensers. This gap is being filled by a new source: Astreea, a unique pedal-operated dispenser developed and manufactured by ARSAT, an aerospace company. Astreea's stainless steel, tubular design allows for faster production, helping to meet the nation's high demand.

Astreea's sleek all-metal construction and hands-free, foot-pedal operation is what initially got the attention of Joby Cronkshaw, Managing Director of Evo Lifestyle Products, the exclusive UK distributor of Astreea.

" We knew from the first time that we saw the Astreea that it was the perfect solution to solve one of the many challenges thrown up by the 'new normal'. Its design is not only durable and attractive it actively encourages usage with the novel at-distance application method. This increased usage is a win-win for everyone and helps create safer working and living environments. Since launching in the UK demand has been high and increasing every day but due to the significant capacity available with the manufacturer, we have managed to maintain inventory levels."

The high-end stylish sanitiser seamlessly blends into its surroundings. Bold and modern, it could easily be mistaken for a piece of art. Our customers want a dispenser that would complement their surrounding aesthetics rather than distract from them.
