Log cabin rentals is the fastest-growing segment of the self-catering holiday market. The new Google Map Log Cabins to Rent (<http://www.logcabinsmap.com/>) is the first comprehensive guide to log cabin holidays all across the UK, featuring 200 sites.

Sites vary from a solitary simple cabin by a fishing lake to the new Bluestone Park in Pembrokeshire (<http://www.logcabinsmap.com/click.php?agency=1397/>), which comes on line this summer with 186 lodges, a Waterpark, Spa and sports club. Hoseasons' luxury Autograph Lodges (http://www.cottages.co.uk/0/autograph_lodges.htm), which guarantee a luxury experience including private outdoor hot tub, are also featured.

The map has been launched after director Jon Cockerill declared himself "overwhelmed" with demand for information on log cabins on the sister site Cottages.co.uk (<http://www.cottages.co.uk/>). "The combination of environmental credentials and, let's face it, budget pricing when many people are feeling the pinch, seems to have catapulted log cabins into popularity in the last few months." said Jon. Breaks in log cabins start at around £220 for three nights for four people. That's in total, not per person.

Note to editors

Log Cabins to Rent locates log cabin sites on a google map of the UK, allowing users to find and click through to sites of interest. It is an information web site, and does not operate or sell holidays itself.

The site Cottages.co.uk (<http://www.cottages.co.uk/>) features over 150 independent holiday cottage agencies across the UK, enabling people to find the local specialists for any area. Established in 2004, it assists over half a million unique visitors per year.
