Submitted by: Business Book Awards

Thursday, 1 February 2018

The organisers behind the Business Book Awards have announced five nominees for this year's Startup Inspiration category. These awards celebrate the best UK business books published between January 1 and December 31 2017 that are designed to motivate new business owners in the early stages of enterprise.

The founder of the awards is Lucy McCarraher, author of 11 books, and co-founder and Managing Editor of Rethink Press. Lucy McCarraher said, "Startups are microcosms that often represent the best of the business world - they are hotbeds of innovation, dedication and entrepreneurial spirit. We're proud to announce such a wonderful list of nominees that represent the true breadth of the Startup Inspiration category."

The authors represented on this year's shortlist are experts in a large variety of topics, ranging from food manufacturing to personal fitness. Whilst some feature uplifting stories of success, others focus more on the ways in which failure can be utilised to gain resilience and an unwavering sense of drive. These books also represent a range of different publishers, from Penguin Random House's business-focused imprint Portfolio, to sole trader Peshmode.
