The emergency contraceptive or 'morning after pill' – levonorgestrel 1.5mg – can be bought online from Dr Fox Online Pharmacy from today at only £3 (GBP3). It is available only to women 18-54 years who wish to order in advance ready in case they need it.

- December is the month with the highest number of conceptions.
- More than twice as many condoms are sold in the week before Christmas as after Christmas.
- Around 61% of British women have used emergency contraception, the highest in the EU.
- If women do not want to become pregnant, they need to be aware of emergency contraception (EC) choices, and how and where to obtain it.

Dr Fox Online Pharmacy supplies levonorgestrel 1.5mg - also known as Levonelle - and the alternative emergency contraceptive ellaOne, for women who wish to keep an advance 'standby' supply of EC at home ready for when needed, following a short, confidential online assessment.

The morning after pill is most effective the sooner it is taken after unprotected sexual intercourse, so having it already available at home, or when travelling abroad, means there is no delay.

When it is advised to use the morning after pill:

- After intercourse where other contraception has not been used.
- After intercourse where a condom has failed (split, come off, etc).
- Where a couple are using the withdrawal method and this has failed.
- If women have missed taking regular contraceptive pills.

A patient in urgent need must contact their GP, sexual health clinic, or local pharmacy.

- Recent supply issues obtaining the alternative - ellaOne.
- There are problems in the pharmacy supply of many different contraceptive pills.
- The Christmas season is now underway, and demand for EC is set to rise.
- Levonorgestrel 1.5mg is effective up to 72 hours (3 days) after intercourse.
- The morning after pill has a shelf-life of several years.
- The morning-after pill is available to women aged 16 and over through the NHS.
- NICE guidance advocates 'advance provision' of EC.

There is a need to improve access to emergency contraception, and encourage those at risk to think ahead. Buying levonorgestrel emergency contraception online from Dr Fox Pharmacy is safe, easy, and convenient.

"At Dr Fox Pharmacy, we would like women to have the best possible outcomes. If we can encourage women to think ahead, they can now obtain the morning after pill to keep at home, ready if they need it, at this highly competitive price." – Dr Tony Steele, Medical Director.
