Greyheart Media a Development, Marketing and SEO Agency in Leeds (<http://www.greyheart.co.uk/>) have moved to a new home. The new office is located in the Calls Landing building in the heart of Leeds.

Managing Director Mike Litson said "The move is great for us, it's a great location and The Calls specifically seems to really be taking off when it comes to the digital sector. This is of course fantastic for us as it means we have access to good amenities and a strong talent pool to help drive future growth in the company. We're really looking forward to seeing what the second half of 2014 brings and have some particularly interesting development projects which we hope to showcase before the end of the year."

The need to expand into a larger space was driven by huge gains internationally requiring more space for staff.

Leeds digital scene has been one of the fastest growing outside of London with a wealth of major companies opening offices in the city and growth of a large number of existing Leeds digital agencies.
