Oracle database-as-a-service pioneer rebranded following recent acquisition.

London, 16/02/2012 – Application managed services specialist and progressive cloud services provider, Quantix, has been rebranded as Interoute Application Management, following its acquisition by Interoute (<http://www.interoute.com/news/managed-application-services-added-interoute-s-unified-computing-portfolio>), owner operator of Europe's largest cloud services platform.

The new name reflects the integration of Quantix's portfolio of database, application and cloud managed services into Interoute's growing service offering. Interoute plans to build on the rich pool of specialist Oracle & Microsoft skills at the former Quantix (<http://www.quantix-uk.com>) headquarters in Nottingham, and to turn it into a European Centre of Excellence for application management services.

As an Oracle Platinum Partner (<http://www.quantix-uk.com>) and one of the UK's most progressive cloud application hosting providers, Interoute Application Management will continue to deliver the highest quality database and application managed services and managed cloud services to a wide variety of enterprise clients and independent software vendor in the UK. Interoute's European presence will also ensure that these services are extended across Europe.

Commenting on how the rebrand reflects the integration of services into the Interoute portfolio, Gareth Williams, CEO of Interoute, said, "We're constantly looking at ways that we can grow the portfolio of solutions and services that we offer, from the ground, to the cloud. Our Unified ICT enterprise strategy is to create and manage all enterprise ICT infrastructure as a service delivered from Europe's largest cloud services platform. The launch of Interoute Application Management is another step forward in aligning all our services under this Unified ICT approach."

Simon Goodenough, MD of Interoute Application Management (formerly Quantix) added, "Becoming part of Interoute was the natural evolution for a specialist organisation such as ours, and as Interoute Application Management we are excited about the prospect of developing new relationships across Europe, whilst continuing to grow and satisfy our large, loyal, UK client base. Not only will we leverage Interoute's unique European footprint to develop new markets for existing services, but we will also invest in and expand our existing product set to better serve our clients, offering a wide range of integrated services"
