A hand-held spray proven to be effective against the H1N1 swine flu (<http://www.killoncontact.com>) virus has been launched by a British company. Called Saniguard (<http://www.killoncontact.com>) the spray, which comes in a range of sizes and formats including a room fogger and pocket-sized spray, has been tested against Influenza A, of which the H1N1 swine flu virus is a sub-type. It kills the virus whilst airborne and on contact with any surface where the virus is likely to settle, rendering a room swine flu-free in a matter of minutes.

Saniguard can currently only be purchased via the internet but there are plans to make it available on the high street as parent company Saniguard International, based in Lancashire, is in talks with major retailers.

Jim Taylor, Saniguard International's CEO says the spray formulated to combat MRSA, HIV-1, Norovirus, E Coli, Influenza A and a range of other viruses, bacteria & fungi, is ideal for both individuals and organisations wishing to protect themselves and the public against the spread of H1N1 swine flu.

"Uniquely SaniGuard is dry on contact so can be used on all surfaces including fabric, paper & electronic devices such as computer keyboards. It is also safe for food contact surfaces. The pocket spray is ideal for personal use whilst the room fogger will render an empty room infection free in 15 minutes, so is best suited to schools, universities, hospitals, commercial and leisure applications such as hotels, restaurants and anywhere where members of the public could conceivably pass viruses to each other" he commented.
