Surviving The Credit Crunch (<http://www.survivingthecreditcrunch.org.uk>) launches a new Debt Forum for its sites users, The Forum has been launched to allow visitors to the site to take more control over the sites content, by allowing them to post questions and raise issues surrounding the Credit Crunch.

We need your help to raise awareness of the forum so that we can commence helping as many people as possible through the sites index of help and advice. We are now looking to move the site to the next level by showing people that they are not alone and that help is at hand for those who need it. We will also be welcoming any offers from people who would like to act as moderators on the forum or from people who feel they can add to the sites overall content. Our aim is simple, we wish to reach as many people as we can and offer them help and support which is relevant and useful to their circumstances.

As an incentive for people wishing to join the forum, Surviving The Credit Crunch will be giving away a FREE Stress Busting Credit Crunch Piggy to the first 500 people who resister with the forum and subsequently post a question or suggestion for the site.

Richard launched the site after encountering many people who were finding it difficult to cope alone with the debt crises, "we felt that there was a need for an independent source of free help and advice for those struggling with their finances" said Richard at the launch earlier this year. Richard also presents a show on Channel M providing financial advice to the shows viewers each Wednesday on Manchester's premier breakfast show.

The website has over 5000 visitors every month and aims to reach in excess of 10 million by 2010 as word spreads. The site already receives a wealth of praise from the banking and services industry as well as many consumer forums alike.

Just as every peak has its trough, so does every pig, claim your free promotional stress busting pig by emailing/ phoning Richard on...
