TBD Media is producing a documentary for one of Europe's leading sleep tech companies, EmmaSleep, and we are looking for participants to join us for a 3-week documented sleep experiment. The experiment aims to improve the world's health by exploring practical sleeping analysis. Sleep impacts all components of our life. If you want to awaken your best, you must not leave sleep out of the equation.

Our programme is tailored to your needs and runs for a total of 3 weeks- end of March to mid of April, and we would only need 10 minutes of your time each day. We will cover the costs; all you need to do is participate and share your experience with us.

In return for being part of the experience, there are some great benefits: you would receive exciting insights into your sleep data, highly qualified, confidential sleep counselling as well as the latest sleep products, incl. Sleep tracking.

If you want to get involved, please get in contact with us.

You might be the one we have been looking for.

What are you waiting for? It's time for a good night's sleep!
